TEACHING PEDAGOGY by Prof. Deepashree & Prof. Namratha

Professor at CCJ informed the students about the nitigrity of the MBA Course and how the complete teaching pedagogy is designed. She emphasised how CCJ prepares a student not only by helping them gain some specialized skills but instead they give them the right tools that can be applied to different situations and circumstances to solve any problem. In other words, they don't have to reinvent the wheel but instead know how to use the wheel in the best possible manner to solve the problems that they will encounter in their professional life. GBSRC have adopted a two pronged approach in their teaching pedagogy:

- Prime focus theories, basic ideas and concepts which is more aligned with the teaching format that is followed in Universities
- Focus on Case studies and application based usage of tools. This approach is more associated with learning process at the global level

Implications and Conclusion:

Principal
Jayanagar, Bangalore-70

To conclude, study largely suggests rejection of the random walk hypothesis in the Indian stock market. This implies that the Indian equity market is not weak or efficient. The results indicate no significant difference in the behaviour of index returns between the NSE and BSE. Nevertheless, the stock indices having higher liquidity and market capitalization prove to be less inefficient than small indices on both the exchanges.

Furthermore, the small indices with less liquidity appear to be more vulnerable to external shocks. Sector Wise, there has not been much difference. In the light of the present evidence, it is clear that policy reforms aimed at improving the efficiency have not brought the desired results. In view of the above discussion, some policy implications are proposed here. The evidence of the existence of potential excess returns in short horizons of investment calls for policy measures aiming at proper dissemination of information to the participants. This has further support from the episodic nonlinear dependence, which suggests that investors take time to respond to the events. Further, to improve the performance of small indices having lesser liquidity, it is important to improve the liquidity of smaller stocks. Encouraging retail trading and promoting the mutual funds in the Indian market may achieve this. RBI's initiative for financial literacy and NSE's certificate courses for financial education are welcoming steps in this direction. External events have always created panic in the Indian stock market.

BRIEF OUTLINE ABOUT THE SHIPPING INDUSTRY VISIT:

The industry is especially important for keeping global supply chains intact, facilitating imports and exports, providing employment opportunities, and being the growth engine for economies worldwide. Its efficiency and effectiveness are critical for businesses to remain competitive. Not many might know this, but the shipping industry keeps the global powerhouses running by reining in inflation- a minor change in freight rates can have drastic effects on the price of commodities worldwide.

In this article, we will discuss everything you need to know about the industry- history, current scenario, trends and everything that falls in between. As we sailors say, "Ahoy!", brace yourself for a tsunami of facts about the trillion-dollar maritime industry

Companies such as Maersk, MSC, and CMA CGM, among others, have played a pivotal role in shaping the shipping industry, investing in cutting-edge technologies and innovative business models. Infact these companies are currently having one of the best financials report in their long history, but more on that later.

OUTCOME OF THE INDUSTRY VISIT.

The shipping industry is crucial in today's global economy. After all, a functioning economy based on international trade relies on the seamless movement of goods and commodities from country to country. Without this industry, intercontinental trade would quite simply not be possible

The technology for monitoring ship operations and performance has been steadily increasing in its sophistication. Ships of the future will have a complete network of sensors to measure all aspects of operations, including detecting faults and identifying areas needing maintenance or repair

The industrial visits and educational trips also provide the undergraduate and postgraduate students with a day off from the everyday life and daily melancholy. Theory classes can be extremely melancholic at times. The industrial trips are the best way to provide the students with a fruitful break.

Let's look at some of the beneficial aspects of anShipping industrial visit.

Principal
Jayanagar, Bangalore-70

- Almost 95 percent of the nation's commerce by volume and 70 percent by value is transported by sea. The expansive 7,500 km of coastline is just one of two geographical variables that favourably position India's maritime industry Offers practical training
- Opportunity to interact with big businesses
- Chance to explore different aspects of manufacturing, processing and production
- Brings face-to-face with industrial realities
- Illusions about a workplace are considerably solved
- Develops interpersonal skills
- Regular visits help to identify different areas of work

Industrial visits are also a great way to gauge career readiness. It creates realistic ideas about the workplace and a lot of misconceptions can be cleared. These visit focus on the operational aspects of a factory. It allows students to know more about the machines, how various techniques are employed to get optimum results and the kind of facilities available at a factory.

A beverage factor, for instance, may be the perfect example of combining safety with high-tech procedures. Here students can learn more about bottling, packaging, distribution, handling and recycling. Most of these steps will be mentioned in a book but, students will never appreciate or understand the process thoroughly unless they witness it first-hand.

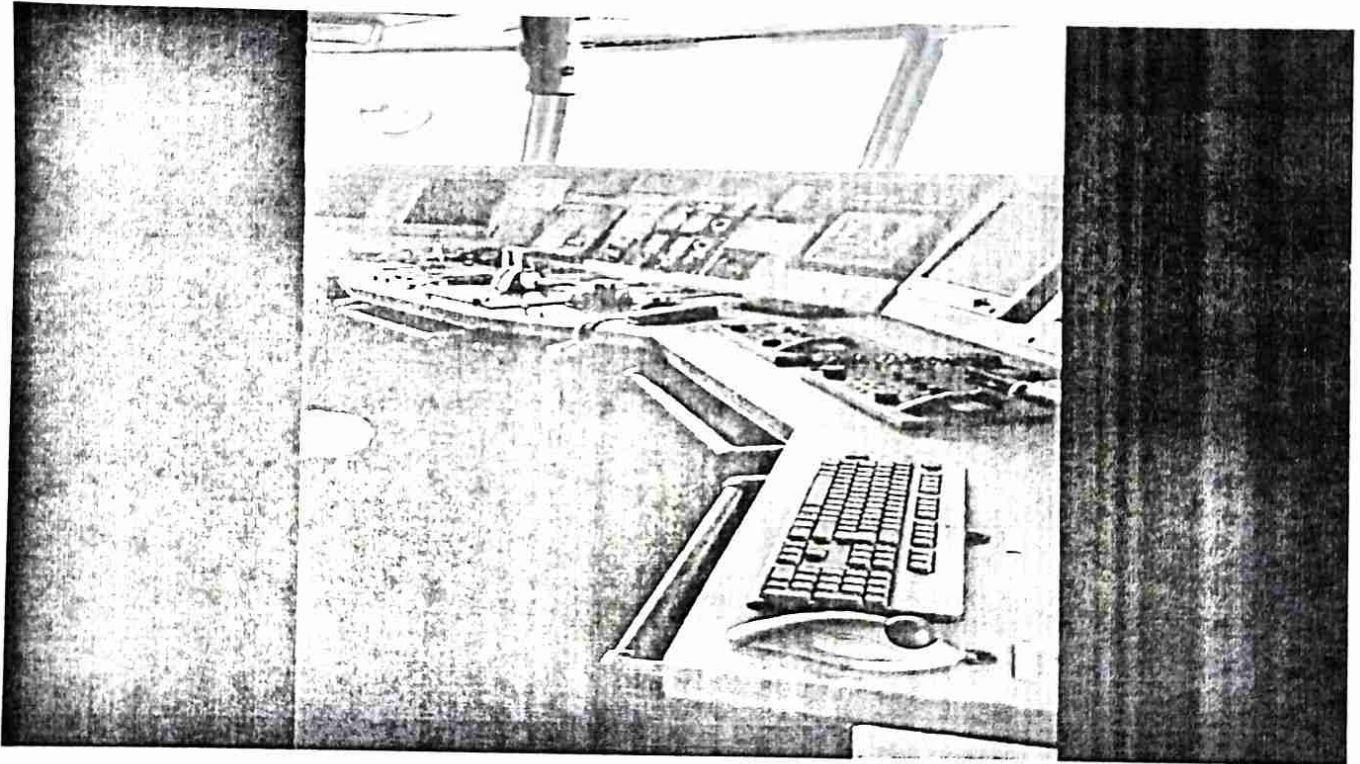

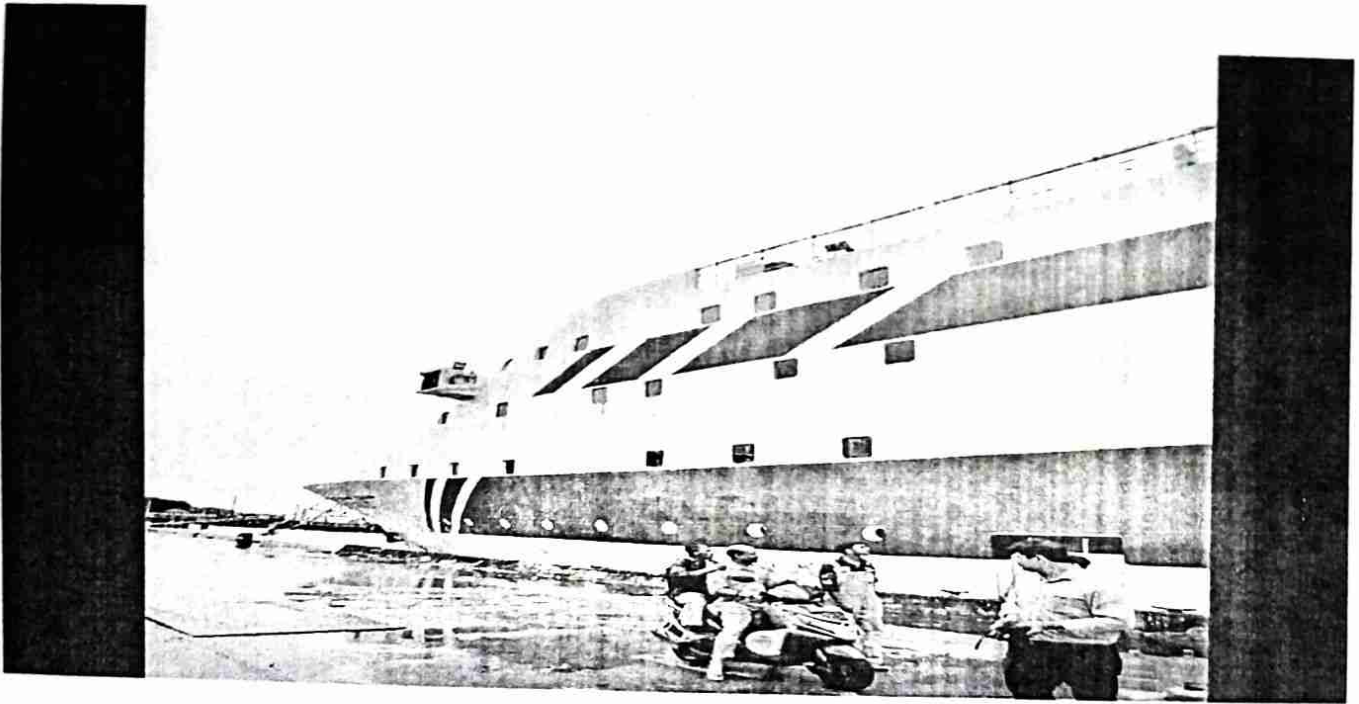

Industrial visits provide the post graduate students with great opportunities to interact with the professionals and industry experts. It provides the students with an opportunity to meet the industrial leaders, policymakers, industry professionals, corporate, and entrepreneurs. These experts and professionals will definitely share their experiences, knowledge, wisdom, lessons, and learning with the students which will help them a lot to make a great career.
